Low Tide, Tenby Harbour. Almost unrivalled for the beauty of its Bay and the wide extent of its sea-view, Tenby stands, with cliffs bold and rugged, though fringed with graceful woods, towering above the sea. It has long been known as a favourite place for the collection of many rare kinds of sea-shells. Upwards of 200 different kinds have been obtained from the waters in the vicinity of the town. [Sea Shell Postcards 2377-8].
